IMPACT
Annual economic impact generated by growers:

~$353.5 million
($968,445/day)

INDIRECT BUSINESS TAXES
Indirect business taxes generated by growers:
(not including income taxes)

~$6.6 million
($18,200/day)

JOBS
Full-time equivalent jobs created and sustained by growers each year:

3,505

FOOTPRINT
Oregon highbush blueberry acreage*:

14,050

*NOTE: Oregon uses a two-year budget. These stats assume budgeted dollars are equally split between the two years.

OREGON
Highlights of the economic impact from Oregon highbush blueberry growers

That's more than a third of the 2019 budget for Oregon Water Resources ($19.4 MILLION)

*Bearings and nonbearing acres
LABOR INCOME
Labor income generated by the business activities of growers:

~$121.8 million ($333,850/day)

These dollars go into wages and salaries for new employment, as well as expanded incomes to those already in the labor force for activities such as overtime pay. These dollars are then diffused throughout the economy as the funds are spent on crucial goods and services such as food, housing, transportation and health care.

“The U.S. highbush blueberry industry — including nearly 940 blueberry farms in Oregon — is a powerful financial force. Behind every farm are growers who not only tend a truly remarkable superfruit, but also stimulate business activity, create thousands of jobs and contribute mightily to the economy.”

About the Study
The economic impact study was commissioned by the U.S. Highbush Blueberry Council and conducted in April 2020 by Dennis Tootelian, Ph.D., Emeritus Professor at California State University, Sacramento. The analysis is based on U.S. highbush blueberry acres in production and in development. Projections are based on annual average expenditures, which means that this impact is expected to occur each year that such spending occurs. Acreage statistics were secured from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The full economic impact study and analysis is available at www.ushbc.org.
